THE WORM'S HEAD HOTEL

Situated towards the West of Swansea in the heart of South Wales is the awe inspiring Gower Peninsular, the UK's first officially recognised Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty. The unique topography and picturesque landscape rigorously protected by the Natural Trust have made Gower the Mecca for international photographers and outdoor enthusiasts alike. The extensive coastline, extreme weather conditions and the natural, unspoiled beauty of the region tempt millions of people to the Gower every year.

On the Western most tip of the peninsular lays the quaint village of Rhossili and atop of its imposing and impressive cliffs, The Wormshead Hotel stands proud in its solitude, boasting superb vistas over the majestic sweep of Rhossili Bay and the famous Wormshead landmark. The scenery, we think you will agree, is the best in Gower.
